June Clark is a court-appointed special advocate for families in need. Until recently, she struggled to find the right kind of services for her clients. "I kind of scrambled all over to look for them," said Clark, who also works for Mothers & Babies Perinatal Network of South Central New York in Binghamton. "A lot of times you're grasping at straws, trying to find services to help people." A new online database launched this year, however, changed the way...
